

Princeton University Class of 1966 Library - 1/31/25

During our undergraduate years on campus approximately 920 individuals at some point were members of the Class of 1966. However, for purposes of the Class of 1966 Library, a "classmate" or "'66er" is defined as the 816 students (89% of the 920) currently affiliated with '66 and does not include the 95 now affiliated with another Princeton University class or the 9 with no affiliation with Old Nassau.

An "author" is defined as any classmate who authored, co-authored, edited, co-edited, translated, co-translated, illustrated or photographed a published book; or contributed a chapter, article, essay or similar entry or an illustration or photograph; or provided a preface, introduction, foreword or afterword.

As of this date there are 665 books in the '66 Library, with 188 class authors performing 679 primary roles, including various contributors to Where The Girls Are (5) and Business Careers After College (8) published by The Daily Princetonian in 1965.
