

Our Stripes Haven't Aged!

CAROL RAHN '72

My meandering career path has included:

- a Ph.D. in Sociology from the University of Chicago,
- organizational development consulting,
- various flavors of marketing in Silicon Valley (market research, communications, channel management, product development, product management) and
- a three month stint in the UK that turned into a permanent re-location.

I retired as VP of Marketing for a subsidiary of France Telecom. Having been part of global teams for much of my working life, my focus now is decidedly local.

I was president or co-president of the Princeton Association of the UK for about 10 years; am a trustee and volunteer with a few local organizations that have a focus on children, animal welfare or the community and can expound on the profound transformation of my neighborhood since 1900.

Most recently I've edited a series of oral history videos which I use in a multi-media presentation, "Growing Up in Wartime Battersea" delivered to various audiences and as the basis for workshops in neighbourhood primary schools.
